DORDRECHT is a seaport situated near Rotterdam, population 48,060 (January 1, 1913), 3 to 4 hours' distance from the North Sea, with which it is connected by the waterway of Helvoetsluis, which gives passage for vessels of 20 and 22 English feet.

It is the nearest port for the importation of goods into Germany, and by its situation in direct connection with the Rhine a good transit business is done, especially in timber from America, Norway, Sweden and Russia.

The Dutch State Railway Company opens three ways — one by Rotterdam (20 kilometers) to Amsterdam, one by Venlo to Cologne and by Rosendaal to Belgium (229 kilometers), and one by Elst to Oberhausen (197 kilometers), as well as to North Germany. Good oil trade as well as timber trade is carried on here.

FLUSHING, with 21,800 inhabitants, is one of the finest and safest ports on the Continent, available at any season, time, or tide. A considerable trade is carried on with Great Britain.

A steam packet service (the "Zeeland" Steamship Company's Royal Dutch Mail Service) runs twice every day (day and night service) between Flushing, Queenboro' and Folkestone. Average duration of passage, 6 or 4 hours, but only 2¼ hours open sea journey. The boats are elegantly fitted up. Quickest, cheapest and most comfortable route between the Continent and England. For details see advert. facing Holland.

There is also a large ship-building yard at Flushing, worked by the "Schelde" Royal Shipbuilding and Engineering Company. There is a Chamber of Commerce. President, Jos. van Raalte; secretary, F. S. Witteveen.

ROTTERDAM is situated on the right bank of the Nieuwe Maas. The population of the city, with the towns of Delfshaven and Kralingen, is (Dec. 31, 1912) 446,894. A canal from Maassluis through the "Hoek van Holland" is now the main channel to and from the sea for all steamers.

Of the carrying trade to Germany by water the official statistics show that 50 per cent. is shared by Rotterdam.

There are eight floating docks.

The industries of the city consist of the distilling of liqueurs and geneva, which is principally exported to South Africa, the manufacture of cigars, margarine, chocolate, beer and chemicals.

The following is a return of the principal articles of import to Rotterdam: Earthenware and porcelain, ashes, beer and malt extract, butter, drugs, dyes, and chemicals, agricultural, steam and other engines, yarns, spirits, wheat, rye, barley, rice, wood for ship building and timber, hardwood, dyewood, hides, skins, leather, cheese, coal, cotton (raw), coffee, mercery, rags, drapers' wares, flour, metal (raw, besides forging bar and rod iron), metal (manufactured), oil, paper, spices, sugar, syrup, molasses, tobacco and cigars, fish oil, fish, flax and hemp, meat, fruit (tree), fresh and other, wine (in the wood and bottled), wool and seed.

The following are the principal exports of the local trade with Great Britain, viz., potatoes, potato flour, onions, beer, rushes, butter, fruit, gin, yeast, vegetables, herrings, hoops, hay, hides, candles, cheese, madder, straw, sugar (refined), osiers, peat moss, flax, game, poultry, cattle, calves, sheep, swine, shrimps, oysters, mussels, smelts, meat, wool, pea litter and seeds.

The total number of sea-going vessels entered during 1912 was 10,208, of 12,126,581 tons.

Lloyd's Agents, John Hudig & Son, Willemskade, 23.

JAVA

THE area of Java has been computed to be 51,100 square miles.

The population of Java and Madura in 1905 was 30,098,008 (64,917 Europeans).

The principal product of the island is sugar (1,443,584 tons in 1912). The sugar from Java was exported to the following countries in 1912: Europe, 24,198 tons; U. S. America, 5,277 tons; Australia, 82,198 tons; China, 182,072 tons; Japan, 187,100 tons; India, 470,187 tons; United Kingdom, 26,940 tons: British Columbia, 40,827 tons; Egypt, 12,000 tons, other countries, 223,260 tons. Total, 1,254,068 tons. The area planted with sugar in 1912 was 346,909 acres, and 185 sugar mills were in operation.

The tea export reached 61,831,660 lbs. in 1912, of which 28,333,536 lbs. were exported to the Netherlands and 21,285,516 lbs. to the United Kingdom. The cultivation of cocoa is gradually extending. The coffee production during 1912 was 34,280 (1913 estd. 28,643) tons. Here are also petroleum springs, possessed by the Dordrecht Petroleum Company; one refinery is at Sourabaya, the other at Semarang, and the Company have erected a factory at Tjepal for the preparation of the various articles produced from the refuse, such as paraffin, ceresine, stearine, candles &c. and have also erected a second refinery at Semarang. Gold mining is also carried on. The production of coal at the Government mines, Ombilien, during 1912 was 408,204 tons.

The following are the principal articles of import:—Cotton and woollen goods, haberdashery and mercery, provisions, earthenware, fish, butter, flour, rice, coals, petroleum, brandy, gin, wines, beer, liquors (spirits), champagne, mineral waters and matches.

The principal articles of export are sugar, coffee, rice, arrack, rattans, hides, nutmegs, tobacco, indigo, gum damar, kapok, india-rubber, tea, tin, cinchona bark, quinine, guttapercha, mace, pepper, coprah, cocoa and tapioca.

BATAVIA is the capital of Java and had a population of 172,540 in 1912.

The Koninklyke PaketvaartMaatschappij monopolises the coastward and Sumatra traffic, and part of the trade with the several islands of the Archipelago. The lines connecting Java with Europe are the "Nederland" Steamship Company's vessels, Rotterdam Lloyd's vessels, and the Ocean Steamship Co. The British India Steam Navigation Co. run steamers monthly from London to Brisbane, touching here en route, whilst it has also a monthly service between Calcutta and Adelaide and back, viâ Singapore and this port, Brisbane, Sydney and Melbourne.

The Deutsch-Australische Dampfschifffahrts Ges. maintains a fortnightly freight steamer service from Batavia to Europe; also the Nord deutscheLloyd at irregular intervals. The Hansa line maintains since 1st January, 1910, a monthly service between New York (via Durban) and the Dutch East Indies.

The communication with Europe, viâ Singapore, at which port large quantities of merchandise are transhipped, is divided between the Norddeutscher Lloyd, Peninsular and Oriental Steamship Company and the Messageries Maritimes, besides which several small steamers, belonging chiefly to Chinese owners, trade regularly backwards and forwards to the different ports in Java, Sumatra and Borneo, carrying chiefly Chinese goods. The Norddeutscher Lloyd connects Belawan Deli (residency East Coast of Sumatra) with Singapore. The Java-Bengalen Lijn, Java-Britisch-India Lijn (the Asiatic Steam Navigation Co.) trading with British India. The Java-Australie Lijn with Australia, and Java-China-Japan Lijn with China and Japan viâ Hong Kong. The agents for these Dutch lines are de Scheepsagentuur.

The total number of vessels entered in the foreign trade during 1912 was 345 of 1,774,372 tons.

SUMATRA

THE whole island of Sumatra has an area of over 160,000 square miles with 4,029,503 inhabitants in 1905.

The district Deli, on the East Coast, produces tobacco and coffee of fine quality; rubber is also cultivated; petroleum is found in large quantities in Achin and on the East Coast of Sumatra, as well as in Palembang, and several refineries are not only working but exporting petroleum to Singapore, Batavia &c.

Sumatra's West Coast produces coffee of fine quality, tobacco, rattans, cassiavera, nutmegs, mace, gum damar, gum benjamin, gutta percha, india rubber, coprah, gambier, and coals.

The Governor of Sumatra's West Coast, the Court of Justice, the Chamber of Commerce, the Vice-Consuls of different nations, and the Military Commander of Sumatra's West Coast are at Padang.

The following are the ports open for import and export trade: Padang, Olehleh, Telok Betong, Deli and Palembang.

ASAHAN (District of SUMATRA). The principal town and harbour is Tandjong Balei, containing a population of about 15,000 natives (Malays, Chinese, Batak and Javanese &c.), in regular steamship connection with the Straits, Penang, Singapore, Deli and Batavia. The chief imports are: Manchester goods, wines and liqueurs, hardware, colored cotton goods, glassware and matches. The exports consist of leaf tobacco, coffee, paddy (unshelled rice), coprah, plantation rubber, gutta percha and india rubber, rattan, gambier and general jungle produce. Most of the import trade is done with the Straits Settlements. Almost the whole of the tobacco goes to Amsterdam; nearly all the coffee to Havre, Hamburg and Amsterdam, and all the native produce to the Straits.

BORNEO

BORNEO is the largest island of the INDIAN ARCHIPELAGO, situated between 7° 4' north—4° 10' south latitude and 108° 50'—119° 20' east from Greenwich, and has an area of about 211,000 square miles. The population is estimated at between 1 and 2 millions, although the interior of the island is unknown. The island is exceedingly rich in natural products of every description—minerals: gold, silver, diamonds and coal, antimonium, tin and iron. Gold was at one time extensively sought for in the western parts of Borneo, but the natives have abandoned the search for the precious metal in favour of the more remunerative pursuit of agriculture. The gold mines of the eastern portion of Borneo do not furnish much happier results, on account of the scarcity of water. Several companies have been formed for gold digging in Borneo. Diamonds have been found at Landak, in the western half of Borneo, but the results of mining have been unsatisfactory at present. It also produces maize rice, cocoanuts, tobacco, sugar cane, getah, rattans, cotton, pepper, bananas, and other tropical fruits, and an excellent quality of ship timber. The Dutch parts of the island are the west and south coasts, an area of 9,347 square miles, with a population of about 1,000,000, under a special governor. The capital of the west coast is Pontianak and of the south and east coast Bandjermasin.

BANDJERMASIN is a seaport and the capital of the south and east parts of the island, situated on the river Martapoera. Population, 60,000. Here are important coal mines.

DUTCH WEST INDIES

THE Dutch West Indies consist of the colonies of Curaçao and Dutch Guiana or Surinam.

CURAÇAO

THE colony of Curaçao consists of the following islands: Curaçao, Bonaire, Aruba, St. Eustatius and Saba, with an area of 403 square miles and a population in 1912 of 55,153. There is telegraphic communication to all parts of the world.

Curaçao, the largest island, is situated in the Caribbean Sea, off the north coast of Venezuela. Population in 1912, 32,926.

The following lines of steamships call at this island:—The Leyland Line; The Harrison (British); these two companies have made arrangements that a steamship of their line will leave Liverpool for this and other ports weekly. The Koninklijke West Indische Maildienst (Dutch) calls at this port every fortnight to and from European and American ports; the Hamburg Amerikanische Packetfahrt Act. Ges. (German) on the 1st and 15th from European ports; the Red D Line (American) arrive here about every week from New York, connecting with other steamships of the company which arrive from and depart to Puerto Cabello, La Guaira and Maracaibo; "La Veloce" (Italian) on the 22nd from European and Venezuelan ports and on the 1st from Colombian ports; Compañia Trasatlantica de Barcelona (Spanish) from European and Colombian ports on the 16th and to Venezuelan ports and Pto. Rico.

Provisions, such as flour, cornmeal, breadstuffs, lard, kerosene, lumber and ice, are imported from the United States of America regularly by an American and a Dutch line of steamships calling here weekly with European and American mails, and connecting with homeward-bound steamships from Puerto Cabello and La Guaira, as also with Coro and Maracaibo boats. The principal articles of export are salt, divi-divi, phosphate of lime, aloes, orange peel, goatskins and straw hats.

DUTCH GUIANA (OR SURINAM)

THE area of Dutch Guiana, generally called SURINAM, is 46,060 square miles. Population on December 31, 1909, was 82,788. Surinam is situated on the coast of the Atlantic Ocean, and is separated by two large rivers, the Marowin and the Corantin, from French and British Guiana. From south to north run the following rivers, all navigable for vessels, viz.:—the Commewine, the Surinam, the Saramacca, the Coppenama and the Nickerie. Along the river banks, in the alluvial part of the country, there are sugar, cocoa, rubber and coffee plantations. More to the south three regions of mountainous land furnish gold, balata and timber.

The principal exports are cocoa, gold, sugar, balata, bananas, rum &c.

The total imports during 1911 were valued at Fl. 8,273,590 and the exports were valued at Fl. 9,201,669.

ROUTE.—The steamers of the Koninklijke West Indische Maildienst, of Amsterdam, run between that port and New York, calling at Paramaribo both outwards and homewards every fortnight. The local steamers of the Cie. Générale Transatlantique, of St. Nazaire, France, which ply between Martinique and Cayenne, call at Paramaribo once a month. There is also communication with Albina, on the Maroni river, once a fortnight.

PARAMARIBO, principal town of Dutch Guiana, had in 1912 a population of 34,898. The whole European population of the Colony is 864 (garrison and navy not included).

ITALY

THE territory comprised in the kingdom of Italy is about 110,000 English square miles. The population in 1911 was 34,686,683.

The government consists of a monarchy; the executive power is vested in the king and his ministers. The legislature consists of two chambers, the upper house or senate and the lower or house of deputies. The latter are elected every five years or on a dissolution of the ministry.

COMMERCE.—Italy is essentially an agricultural country, and the agricultural class forms the majority of her population. The staple products are corn, wine, oil, raw silk and fruits. Hemp and flax are also largely grown, and sulphur is also largely produced.

Among the manufacturing industries of Italy silk holds the first place. Other principal industries are wine growing, the manufacture of cotton goods, olive oil and sugar, the breeding of cattle, and also the rearing of poultry.

The marble quarries of Carrara and Massa are world famous, and large quantities in the rough and also worked into various forms are annually exported.

Italian wines now appear to be able to compete abroad successfully with French wines in cheapness and quality, as regards the inferior qualities if not in the superior qualities.

Although the great centre of the Olive Oil trade, the production does not equal the demand. Olive oil is also imported into Italy principally from Tunis, Spain and Greece. Great Britain, France and South America are the principal markets for its export.

ANCONA is the only port after Venice for large vessels in that part of the coast of the Adriatic. The population in 1911 was 63,535. There are now four lines of British steamers trading regularly to this port.

Imports: British manufactures, dry goods, jute, twists and iron, principally bars, railway iron, pig iron, coals, rice, herrings, chemicals (sulphates, oxides, acids and alkali) and raw sugar. The exports consist of bitumen, liquorice, hemp, walnut wood, asphalt, wine lees, argols, raw silk, lamb and goat skins &c, refined sugar and asphalt.

The important industries of the province are sugar refining, silk spinning, the manufacturing of earthenware, shipbuilding; there are also foundries and paper manufactories at Fabriano.

Lloyd's Agent, Umberto Servadio.

BRESCIA is the capital of the province of the same name, and has a population of (1911) 83,323 inhabitants. It is situated on the river Garza, and on the railways from Milan to Verona and from Brescia to Cremona. The most important industries are the manufacture of fire arms, silk, flax and cotton stuffs, paper, hosiery, agricultural implements, carriages, railway wagons and wheels, iron bedsteads, musical instruments and furniture; distillery, liqueurs, soap, straw and felt hats, and artificial manure. The chief exports consist of ironware, machinery, arms, linen goods, woollen stuffs and silk goods. Here is a Chamber of Commerce.

CAGLIARI, the capital of the Island of Sardinia, has now a population of 60,101.

The industry of the town and district consists in the mines, tunny fisheries and coral fisheries; these are situated at Iglesias, Carloforte, and St. Antioco, and are important.

The imports consist principally of cereals and articles of consumption, and the exports consist principally of wines, cattle, cheese, metals, manufactures of, and minerals.

Lloyd's Agent, A. G. Marcialis.

CARLOFORTE.—This roadstead, on the east coast of the island of San Pietro, is a magnificent bay, completely land-locked by nature, where a fleet could anchor safely in all weathers; but for commercial purposes the want of a proper port is a great drawback to the different mining companies, who are obliged to keep small tugs on purpose to ply along the coast to and from the different jetties. The exportation of different kinds of ores from Carloforte is calculated at over 120,000 tons per annum; the greatest quantity for Belgium and France. The importation of coals from England is about 20,000 tons per annum. Population, 7,700. Products: Wine, tunny fish, coral, sardines, sea salt, manganese, yellow ochre.

Lloyd's Sub-Agent, P. G. Mercalli.

CARRARA is the principa town of the province of MASSA, and has a population of about 25,000. A branch line from Avenza (a station on the railway from Genoa to Pisa) runs to Carrara.

The marble quarries, for which Carrara is so famous, lie along the ravines of the mountains, through which roads or pathways are cut for access. A special railroad from the top of the mountains to Carrara and the sea shore has been constructed for carrying down the marble, which is sent to all parts of the world. The excavations begin quite near to the town, at a village called Torano, and continue up different ravines from one and one half to two miles. The quarries give employment to some 8,450 men, and about 2,432 more are engaged in working marble. The marble exported during 1912 was 365,191 tons. Here is a Chamber of Commerce.

FLORENCE (FIRENZE) is the capital of the province of the same name, and has a population of about 250,000 inhabitants. It is situated on the river Arno, and on the railways from Bologna to Rome and from Florence to Pisa. Copper exists at Montaione in the district of San Miniato, near Florence. Gypsum is also found in the same neighbourhood, where it is made into plaster of Paris. A variety of building stones and valuable marbles are produced in the province. The industry of the province is mostly agricultural; flax and hemp are produced on a small scale and the vine is extensively cultivated. Straw plait and straw hat manufactures are of considerable importance. A large trade in wine is also carried on. Here is a Chamber of Commerce and Borsa.

GARESSIO, see MONDOVI.

GENOA is the chief port of Italy, and has a population of 300,000. It is by far the most important commercial port in Italy, and by its geographical position is necessarily destined to a further increase of trade. The principal exports from Genoa are produce of the country, wine, olive oil, marble, mineral ore, alimentary paste, preserved provisions &c.

The most important imports consist of raw cotton; coal (in 1912, 3,044,985 tons); grain, mineral oils and other raw materials.

Among the industries of the district may be mentioned important cotton manufactories, woollen manufactories and tanneries. There are also various sugar refineries and very extensive iron works, doing important work for the Italian government, railways &c. There are extensive shipbuilding yards at Sampierdarena and Sestri Ponnente also for the construction of men-of-war.

The total number of vessels entered during 1912 was 6,013, of 7,104,904 tons.

Genoa has a Chamber of Commerce (Palazzo Nuova Borsa [via Dante]), also a Corn & Seed Trade Association (Associazione del Commercio dei Cereali e Semi), p. Serriglio, 6, and a British Chamber of Commerce for Italy (Pres. Evan Mackenzie; Secretary, E. B. Weatherhead, v. Frugoni, 1).

Lloyd's Agent, Evan Mackenzie, palazzo della Meridiana.

LEGHORN (LIVORNO). Population of the commune, 103,849 (census of 1911). The principal industries of the city and commune of Leghorn are ship building (wood and iron), glass works, soap works, candied fruit &c., these latter being exported to a considerable extent; building materials; patent fuel is also manufactured. The city is also celebrated for its worked coral industry; it is also the centre of the borax and boracic acid trade of Tuscany. In 1912 the total value of the imports was lire 146,550,859, and the total exports lire 83,861,675.

The total number of vessels entered during 1912 was 4,500 of 2,758,878 tons, of which 301 of 475,348 tons were British.

The following are the principal regular lines of steamers calling at Leghorn: — Between London and the Mediterranean: General Steam Navigation Co. two or three monthly calls. Between Antwerp, Rotterdam and the Mediterranean: Rotterdam Lloyd and Gellatly's line, twice monthly and Furness line. Between Liverpool and the Mediterranean: Ellerman, Cunard Line, Atlantic Eastern Line, twice monthly. Between United States and Mediterranean: Anchor Line, three times monthly. Between Hull and the Mediterranean: Wilson Line, about twice monthly; John Bruce & Co.'s Line, twice monthly. Between Hamburg and Mediterranean: Sloman Line, three times monthly. Here is a Chamber of Commerce and a branch of the British Chamber of Commerce in Italy. Hon. sec. Geo. Busch. p. Vittorio Emanuele, 12.

REGGIO (CALABRIA) is the capital of the province of the same name, in the Straits of Messina, and has a population of 47,301. It is a very important port and is the centre of a railway system, and the only direct communication with the Isles of Sicily (by ferry-boat) and Malta. The country is very fertile, and produces oranges, citrons, figs, olive oil, wine, silk &c. The chief industries are the extraction of essences from oranges, lemons and bergamot (exclusively produced here) and breeding silkworms and also the manufacture of silk. Exports consist of wine, oil, wood, fruits and essences. The imports consist principally of colonial goods, coal and cotton goods. Here is a Chamber of Commerce.

SAVONA, with a population of 54,758 (Dec. 31, 1912), is situated on the main line between Marseilles and Genoa and is connected direct by rail with Turin, and is the chief outlet and inlet of commerce for Piedmont and neighbouring districts.

The exports by sea are very limited. By (railway) overland, however, during the summer and autumn months, fairly large quantities of green fruits and vegetables are exported to inland towns of the north of Italy and thence to Switzerland, Austria, France, &c.

The imports consist principally of coal (1,122,965 tons in 1912), pig iron, iron, steel, grain and petroleum.

The exports consist principally of wooden hoops, indian corn, oil cakes, cork, candied fruits, chestnuts, scorie of minerals, tomato extract &c. Here is a Chamber of Commerce.

SPEZIA (LIGURIA) is a port in a bay in the Gulf of Genoa, with a population of 80,037 (July, 1909). A rapidly developing commercial town, and Italy's most important naval base and dockyard. The Arsenal contains 6 of the largest dry docks, and there is also a floating graving dock for smaller vessels. The private shipbuilding yard of Muggiano turns out all classes of steel vessels, including the very largest sized steamships for foreign owners (British and French). The exports consist of wine, olive oil, tanning extracts, marble and sandstone for paving and building. The imports consist mostly of coals from England for the Government arsenal, the railways and various private and public undertakings at Parma, Reggio, Piacenza, Modena &c. also machinery and war material, and mineral ores (lead and silver). The lead ores are imported by the lead works at Pertusola, in the bay of Spezia. Coal imported in 1912 was 393,500 tons.

Important harbour works have lately been carried out, and facilities now exist for large steam vessels to load or discharge alongside the quay.

VENICE
is situated on the lagoons of the Adriatic, being built upon some 70 small islands, connected together by more than 350 bridges, which span the numerous canals in every direction. The population of the city is (1911) 158,423.

Among the industries must be mentioned the very important mosaic and glass works; lace, art furniture, artistic looking glasses and reproduction of antiquities of all kinds &c. which are largely exported.

Here is a Chamber of Commerce. President: Prof. Vittorio Meneghelli

ELBA

THIS island is situated in the Mediterranean, on the west coast of Italy. Population in 1911, 29,549. It is celeorated for its mines of iron ore, which is exported to a considerable extent, and also for the excellent quality of wine produced. The grapes of Elba are exported for the manufacture of vermouth, for which they are specially adapted. Other exports are limestone, pig iron and manganese. Portoferraio is the capital and trading port of the island.

Lloyd's Sub-Agents, Virgilio Foresi, at Porto Ferraio; J. Papucci, at Rio Marina.

PORTOFERRAIO is the capital of the island of Elba with (1911) 9,435 inhabitants. Exports consist of fruit, grapes, marble, granite, manganese and iron ore, and the principal imports of building materials, machinery, coal, grain and flour.

SICILY

SICILY is about 190 miles long by 106 broad, and is separated from Italy by the narrow strait of Messina. The population in 1911 was 3,672,258. The island is celebrated for its sulphur production and also for its production of wine. Sicily is the principal sulphur producing country in the world, others being Japan and U.S. America. The sulphur ore production in 1912 was 2,444,494 metric tons, valued at lire 27,464,363 from 379 mines. Export of brimstone during 1912 was 447,638 metric tons, chiefly to France.

There is also a large amount of asphalt produced (133,432 metric tons in 1912). The quantity exported during 1912 was 148,346 metric tons, principally to Germany (85,642 metric tons); Netherlands (7,325 metric tons); U.S. America (11,100 metric tons); Great Britain (19,209 metric tons) and Austria-Hungary (10,759 metric tons).

One-tenth of the superficial area of the island is covered with the vine, the wine production for 1912 being 3,584,000 hectolitres. The places where wine is chiefly grown are Barcelona, Gesso, Salice, Catania, Quattro Masse, Faro, Milazzo, Lipari and the adjacent islands; the best qualities are grown at Lipari, Faro and Milazzo The other agricultural industries of the island are the production of oranges, lemons, shumac, wine and oil.

The ports of Sicily are—Palermo, Messina, Catania, Riposto, Syracuse, Scoglitti, Terranova, Licata, Girgenti, Sciacca, Mazara, Marsala (the chief seat for the production of the well-known "Marsala" wine), Trapani, Milazzo.

LIPARI is a group of islands of volcanic nature, and of which some are still active, viz.: Stromboli and Vulcano. They are situated north of Sicily, 30 kilomètres. The principal trade centre is Canneto-Lipari.

LIPARI is the most important and largest of these islands, with a population of 15,616 (1911); it has a daily postal service with Milazzo, and a weekly mail service with Messina, Naples by the steamships of the Società Siciliana di Navigazione a Vapore, and a commercial weekly service to the Adriatic and Tirreneau ports by the Marittima Italiana. The islands are very fertile, but mountainous; the products have a very good reputation, viz.: wines, prepared capers and dried raisins. The Pietra Pomice, or pumice stone, white and grey, of which the mountains, or rather the interior of the mountain "Campo Bianco" furnishes the best qualities, is entirely a speciality of this island. The export of pumice is increasing yearly, and regular steamers load pumice at Canneto for all parts of the world.

The firms marked thus * reside at Canneto.

MARSALA is a port on the west coast of Sicily, with a population of 65,451 (1911). Marsala enjoys a thriving commerce, being the chief port for the shipment of the wine which bears its name, and of which the export steadily increases. A fair amount of wine lees are also exported. Imports consist chiefly of staves for making casks, hoop iron, spirit and coal; also a fair quantity of grain, nearly all the land about here being devoted to the vine cultivation.

MILAZZO is a port on the north-east side, near Messina; here is an excellent harbour, with good anchorage. The exports are wine, oils, lemons, oranges, lemon juice &c. and flour. The imports are grain, coals, timber, iron, petroleum, cod fish &c. The bay and the harbour of Milazzo make the place a splendid coaling station, where steamers are always supplied with quick despatch.
Population (1911) 16,569.

PALERMO.—The population of the town is (June, 1911) 341,088.

The imports consist principally of grain, timber, hides, colonial produce, linen, cotton and woollen goods, metals, cast and wrought iron, coal &c.

The exports consist principally of green and dry fruit, shumac, alimentary preserves, tartar, besides oils, sulphur, wine &c.

LIBIA

LIBIA contains an area of about 1,200,000 kilomètres.

It is bounded on the north by the Mediterranean, on the west by Tunisia and the Sahara, on the east by Egypt, and on the south by undefined frontiers and the oases of Gàtron and Ghât. The population is about 1,000,000.

It is divided into two parts, the western named Tripolitania, and the eastern named Cirenaica.

The natives and agricultural classes being consumers of barley as a food stuff, and not of wheat, the proportion of the former is more than three-fourths of the total area sown. It constitutes the food of the bulk of the people, and its harvest forms the mainstay of the country, the prosperity of which for the time being depends on the success of its harvest. Owing to its excellent quality and whiteness it is sought after for malting purposes, and any surplus yield beyond what is required for local wants goes almost entirely to England.

The principal product of the district is esparto fibre which grows in immense quantities in the interior some three or four days' journey from the port of Tripoli; the fibre is plucked by the Arabs and transported on camels to the town, a camel load being about 4 cwt. Mineral products are sulphur, phosphates, iron, marble, antimony and nitrates. There are also immense deposits of salt in the vicinity of Benghazy, Derna and Misurata.

TRIPOLI, the capital of TRIPOLITANIA, with 177,500 inhabitants, is the principal port.

ROUTE.—Frequent communication between Syracuse and Tripoli by the Italian State Railway steamers and Soc. di Navigazione Sicilia; also regular weekly communication from Tunis and Malta by the Società di Navigazione Sicilia, and also by the French Compagnie de Navigation Mixte (Cie. Touache), from Marseilles to Tripoli and back, viâ Tunis coast; average duration of journey to England, six days; Cie. Mahsussé, Tripoli-Constantinople. Also bi-weekly communication from Malta, Tripoli, Benghazi, Derna, Canea, and return same route from Canea; also bi-weekly to Constantinople. Also Linea di Navigazione, Tripoli-Cyrenaica-Alexandria, bi-weekly from Malta for Tripoli, Misurata, Benghazi, Derna, Sollum and Alexandria, returns Derna, Banghazi, Tripoli and Malta.

BENGHAZY, on the east coast of the Gulf of Sidra, is the capital of CIRENAICA. The population is estimated at 30,000. A large quantity of salt is annually extracted from the local salines, and the sponge fishery in the Gulf is also lucrative.

Principal exports from Benghazy are barley, wheat, dyewood or madder, hides, ivory, ostrich feathers and wool, and cattle for Malta and Alexandria.

Animals are also exported, viz.: camels, cattle, sheep and goats.

Principal imports into Benghazy are Manchester goods and yarns, fezzes, suits, woollen barracans, coal, silver, matting and palm baskets, oil, paper, petroleum, rice, sacking, silken goods, colored handkerchiefs, blue cloth, long cloth, T-cloth, muslins, prints, tea, wines and spirits, wood, iron bars, girders and copper sheets.

MONACO

MONACO is an independent principality on the Mediterranean coast, bounded by the French Department of the Alpes Maritimes, with an area of about 8 square miles. The resident population is 22,956, of whom 568 are British subjects. The capital consists of the old town, MONACO proper, upon the rocky peninsula. LA CONDAMINE, more sheltered and much larger, is a health resort in winter and visited for sea-bathing in summer. MONTE CARLO, a fashionable watering-place visited by the elite of all nations in 1912, the numbers being 1,697,432, is beautifully situated on a sheltered bay and enjoys a delightful climate, while the surrounding scenery is full of charm and variety. The Bath Establishment, on the terrace, is supplied with every form of medical and hygienic bath, and at the bar the mineral waters of all the best-known European resorts may be obtained. The Casino gardens are famous for their beauty and collection of tropical plants.

COMMERCE.—Nearly all requisites are imported, the only industries in the Principality being a brewery, a small perfumery distillery and flour mills. The principal articles of importation are cloth, coal, cutlery, electro plate, furniture, grass seed, groceries, mineral waters, patent medicines, sanitary ware, soap, spirits, tea, wheat and whisky. Exports: Beer, alimentary pastes and tar.

The port is safe and sheltered, the south quay reserved for merchant shipping; vessels drawing 8 mètres (26 feet 3 inches) can discharge along-side. Being connected with the main line of the P.L.M. Railway, Monaco is the port par excellence for receiving goods destined to all stations on the Riviera, whither they can be promptly railed. Goods entering the Principality are subject to the French Customs, which are levied by officials of the Republic. The north quay is retained for pleasure yachts, which are attracted to Monte Carlo in large numbers; here they can be fitted out, provisioned and repaired.

ROUTES.—The White Star Line calls regularly during the season from New York and continues to Genoa and Naples; the Cunard Line from New York and proceeding to Naples. The Hamburg-American Line maintains a service three times weekly from Genoa, and on alternate days the boats leave Monaco for Genoa. Direct steamer service with England (agents, Page, Randall & Co.).

The Consul-General in London is Theodore Lumley esq. 37 Conduit street W; Vice-Consul, Paul Crémieu-Javal esq. J.P. 39 Ennismore gardens S W.

MONTENEGRO

MONTENEGRO, in the Balkan Peninsula, has a territory of about 17,000 kilomètres, and a population of about 450,000. The territory of Montenegro has increased since the Balkan War, and the frontiers now touch Servia itself. There will no doubt be an increase in trade. The population is entirely agricultural.

The imports consist of cotton, woollen goods, iron and other metals, colonials and ironmongery. The only Government monopolies are salt and tobacco. There is a steady development in agriculture, commerce and industry. There is a through trade with North Albania and Old Servia. The exports consist of horses, cattle, meal, shumac, insect powder, skins, hides, wood and timber, a few furs, sardines, smoked mutton, oil, wine, tobacco and lime tree extract.

The British Minister is Count de Salis C.V.O., C.M.G. Cettinjé.

The Consul-General for Montenegro in London is Col. Sir John Roper Parkington J.P., D.L., F.R.G.S. 21 Mincing lane E C.

Consul.—Bristol, Ernest Geo. Mardon.

NORWAY

NORWAY, a kingdom of Northern Europe. It comprises the western and northerly portions of the Scandinavian peninsula, containing an area of 124,100 square miles. It is about 1,100 miles in length and 250 at its greatest breadth. The coast line is enormous, owing to the numerous fjords which penetrate the land in all directions. The country is divided into 20 provinces or amts.

The population in December, 1910, was 2,392,698, the greater proportion of whom are employed in agriculture, the timber trade and fisheries.

The length of railways open for traffic in 1911 was:—State Railways, 1,635 miles, and the trunk lines, 282 miles.

COMMERCE.—The wealth of the country consists of its timber, fisheries, ice, and mineral resources—of these, the ice, paper, wood-pulp, canned goods, granite, portable houses and joinery, fish oils, machinery and ship-building trades, and its mines, are being rapidly developed.

The imports are as follows: colonial wares, grain of all kinds, coal and coke, salt, woollen and cotton goods, iron and machinery, chemicals for the wood-pulp and paper trades, coopers' supplies, raw wool and cotton &c.

The principal articles exported from Norway are dried fish (cod), split fish (cod), herrings, fresh and preserved fish of all kinds, butter, sole leather, roe, fish oil, fish guano, oats, ice, timber, wood-pulp (dry), wood-pulp (wet), cellulose (dry), cellulose (wet), matches, iron pyrites and copper ore, kieselguhr, hay, potatoes and fruit (wild) and their juices are exported in considerable quantities; also punch and liqueurs (aquavit and bitters). Paper (news, ochres, wrappings, printings), curtains, wood-pulp, oil, guano, refrigerating machinery, gas and steam fittings, and lubricating apparatus industries have developed an important export trade during recent years.

The area covered by forests in Norway is about 26,230 square miles, and 75% of the timber is pine-wood (red and white), and of the remainder birch predominates.

The estimated value of the export and import trade of Norway during 1912 amounted to Kroner 831,177,486.

Avance Canning Co. A/S (sardine & herring canners)

BERGEN, with a population of about 80,000, has two safe and commodious harbours, one for merchant ships in the principal town, the other for men-of-war and pleasure yachts, although the entrance is somewhat difficult. The town is one of the most important in Norway, and, being the most convenient port from England, a considerable trade is carried on. This city is now connected by rail (night and day services) with Christiania, via the high mountain plateaux, distant about 500 kilomètres.

Exports consist chiefly of cod liver oil, cod roe, dried fish, fresh herrings in ice and salted, and bran; and the imports of coals, cereals, building materials, colonial produce, salt, seed, raw cotton and manufactured goods, railway materials, chemicals, paint, sail-cloth, rope, tallow and oils, shipbuilding materials, manufactured metal goods &c. This place is connected by various steamship lines with the entire coast. (For other communications see "Steam Navigation Companies.")

Here is a Chamber of Commerce (Bergens Börs).

CHRISTIANIA, or KRISTIANIA, is the principal seaport and capital of the kingdom. It is situated at the northern extremity of a deep fiord, and had a population (1912) of 247,488.

The city is now connected by rail with day and night expresses, across the high mountain plateaux, with Bergen on the west coast, from whence a daily steamship service is under consideration, forming a direct mail and passenger communication with Newcastle-on-Tyne.

A regular steamship service is maintained by the Wilson line of Hull, with sailings to Hull summer, twice a week; winter, weekly) and to London fortnightly. For other communications by sea see "Steamship Companies." The total number of vessels entered during 1912 was 2,973 of 1,389,360 tons.

Principal articles of import are cereals, coals, colonial produce, cotton and woollen goods and agricultural machinery.

Principal articles of export of Norwegian goods from Christiania consist of wood pulp, timber, margarine, ice, granite, machinery, paper, horseshoe and other nails, jewellery and filigree work, turned wood-goods, cod-liver and whale oils, electric apparatus and telephones, old rope, metal and rags.

The Trade Intelligence Bureau of Norway (Norges Oplysningskontor for Næringsveiene) is a public institution, founded for the purpose of furthering the export trade and the industries of Norway through general intelligence and special assistance, acting as an intermediary between sellers and buyers. Foreigners may apply to the Bureau for any information concerning the exports of Norway &c. The Bureau does no business on its own account, nor does it charge any commission.

CHRISTIANSAND, S. is a deep and sheltered harbour on the south coast. Coal for steamers is largely imported. The population of the town is 15,800.

The principal exports are sawn deals, pit-props and timber, woodpulp, paper, salmon and trout, lobsters, mackerel, herrings, felspar and aluminium.

There are three lines of weekly steamers between this port and Great Britain: Wilson's lines to Hull (to London fortnightly), James Currie & Co.'s line to Leith and Fred. Olsen's line to Grangemouth.

Here is a Chamber of Commerce (Christianssands Börs).

DRONTHEIM, or TRONDHJEM, population of 48,000, is a safe harbour, situated on a bay formed by the outlet of the river Nid.

Norwegian and Swedish timber, wood pulp and other produce to a considerable extent are shipped from this port; also butter. There is an extensive import of colonial goods and other foreign produce.

Besides the connection by steamer round the coast, there is a railway to Christiania and, via Storlien, in connection with the entire Swedish railway system.

Trondhjem is the starting point of the express steamer services to the North of Norway all the year through.

Here is a Chamber of Commerce (Trondhjems Handelsforening).

STAVANGER, population about 40,000, is a port situated at the south side of the entrance of the Bukken fiord, an extensive arm of the North Sea; it has a good harbour. Regular lines of steamers between Stavanger and Hull, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Rotterdam, Hamburg, Gothenburg, Iceland, Copenhagen (and Leith), Prussian Baltic ports, Spain, Antwerp, Bremen and Glasgow, Swansea, Llanelly and Manchester.

The principal imports are coals, cattle food, cotton seed meal, olive oil, tinplate, tomato pulp for the canning trade, grocery, salt, barley and rye: and the exports consist of fish and preserved provisions of all kinds (especially sardines and herrings), lobsters &c.; fish and cod liver oils, granite, wild berries and butter; also zinc ore and old metal.

Here is a Chamber of Commerce (Stavanger Handelsforening).

PORTUGAL

THE area of Portugal on the Continent is 34,254 square miles, and the population in 1900 was 5,016,267; the Azores have 922 square miles and a population of 256,291 (1900), and Madeira 314 square miles and a population of 150,574 (1900).

COMMERCE.—The imports consist of almost every description of merchandise, of which nearly one-third is from Great Britain. The exports consist mainly of agricultural produce, olive oil, cattle, cork, wine &c.; wine is, however, by far the most important of Portuguese exports.

It is difficult to say what proportion of the total area of the country is under cork forests, more especially as these are all in the hands of private individuals, the state forests being very few in number in Portugal.

The cork-bearing area of Portugal comprises, in the first instance, the valley of the Tagus, that is to say, the districts of Lisbon and Santarem; and afterwards those of Castello Branco, and Portalegre. This portion of the area is connected in the south-east to another portion comprising the districts of Evora and Beja (Alemtejo), and in the east to the forests of Spanish Estramadura. Finally to the north a third group comprises the districts of Vizeu and Guarda. The cork tree is virtually found throughout the whole of Portugal with the exception of the extreme south, the extreme north and a calcareous band separating the cork trees of the valley of the Tagus from those of the valley of the Douro.

The manufactures of Portugal are unimportant, being in fact practically confined to the national market, including Brazil, and consist principally of cotton and woollen goods, boats, iron implements &c.

LISBON, the capital and principal seaport, on the right bank of the Tagus, has a population of 435,359. The Royal Mail Co.'s steamers from Southampton and the Pacific Steam Navigation Co.'s vessels from Liverpool call every fortnight; also Hall's line from London every week, besides several other lines of well-known steamers, both British and foreign. The import trade consists of hemp, flax, corn and cloth from Russia; iron, steel, salt fish, timber and pitch from the Baltic; linen, cloth, hardware, machinery &c. from Holland and Germany; codfish from Newfoundland and Norway; corn and petroleum from United States; silks and wine from France; beans and sulphur from the Mediterranean; cotton and woollen goods, linen, hardware, butter, ale, porter, machinery, coal, iron &c. from Great Britain. The total imports during 1911 were valued at £7,078,979. The export trade consists of wines, fruit, salt, oil, wool, leather, cork, cattle, pitwood, potatoes, onions, tinned fish; also minerals (copper ore). The total exports during 1911 were valued at £2,376,939. The total number of vessels entered during 1912 was 2,768, of 5,375,511 tons. Here are three Chambers of Commerce (Camara do Commercio de Lisboa, Chambre de Commerce Française, and Camara de Comercio Española).

OPORTO, on the Douro, with 167,995 inhabitants (1900), is the second port in the kingdom of Portugal, and one of the centres of trade in the country, Lisbon beingthe first. It is about 2 miles from the sea. A harbour at Leixões, about 3 miles north of Oporto, is frequently used as a harbour of refuge for vessels which cannot cross the bar owing to rough sea or want of tide, as also for large ocean going steamers to embark passengers and cargo. The total value of the exports during 1911 was £2,168,274, while that of the imports was £5,494,970. The principal export is wine; Port Wine being celebrated all over the world. The export of port wine in 1911 was 5,630,885 gallons, of which the quantity exported to the United Kingdom was 2,989,076 gallons. The most important industry of Oporto is the weaving of cotton goods. The total number of vessels entered in the foreign trade during 1912 was 725 of 436,451 tons. Here are two Chambers of Commerce.

AZORES

THE Azores are considered as a province of Portugal. They consist of nine islands, Corvo, Fayal, Flores, Graciosa, Pico, San Jorge, San Miguel (St. Michael's), Santa Maria and Terceira. The area is 922 sq. miles and the population in 1911 was 243,378.

For administrative purposes they are divided into three districts: Eastern (capital, Ponta Delgada); Western (capital, Horta) and Central (capital, Angra do Heroismo).

COMMERCE.—The exports go to England and to Portugal, and consist of alcohol, beans, maize, cattle, butter and pineapples.

In consequence of the diminished production of the orange crop, many of the groves have been destroyed to give place to the sweet potato, for distilling purposes, and pineapples.

The Export and Import trade of St. Michael's, Azores, during 1912, amounted to Milreis 3,610,360.

FAYAL, see HORTA.

FLORES has a population of 7,233 (1911). The exportation from the island is principally butter, cattle and hides. The imports consist of lumber, glassware, iron and earthen ware, cotton and woollen goods, cloth, petroleum &c. Here is also a whale fishery, and the sperm oil is sent to London viâ Lisbon. The capital of the island and principal port is Santa Cruz. There are three regular steamers from Lisbon and Oporto to the Azores, but only one calling at Flores, being the last, bound for New York. There is a wireless station at Santa Cruz which can communicate with vessels from two to four hundred miles off.

HORTA is the capital of the island of Fayal. The town has a population of about 7,000 inhabitants. The district consists of the islands of Fayal, Pico, Flores and Corvo. It is the most sheltered port of the whole archipelago.

This port is now much frequented by steamers and men-of-war for coals which can be had at a moderate price, as well as provisions and water, which are good. The principal exportation is corn, wheat, cattle, green hides & butter.

ROUTE.—By the Portuguese mail steamers of the Empresa Insulana de Navegação, leaving from Lisbon on the 5th and 20th of every month; also once every month, leaving Oporto via Lisbon, Madeira, and all the islands, Flores included; besides these mails there are other steamers which run between Lisbon and New York, calling at Fayal both ways.

MADEIRA

MADEIRA is considered as a province of Portugal. The archipelago of Madeira comprises the islands of Madeira, Porto Santo and Desertas. The population of the island of Madeira in 1912 was estimated to be 168,820. Funchal, the capital, has 50,000 inhabitants. It is the only port of the island of Madeira and is a roadstead in an open bay, and is principally a port of call for coaling purposes. It produces the famous wines which are exported to all parts of the world. The other industries of the island consist of embroidery, wicker work, cabinet ware, sugar making &c.

The export of wine from Madeira and its dependencies for the year 1912 was 6,778 pipes. A Madeira pipe contains 92 imperial gallons.

COLONIES

PORTUGUESE SOUTH-WEST AFRICA

ANGOLA

ANGOLA is a large province in South-West Africa, the coast line of Angola having an extent of 989 miles (4° 40' to 17° 20' S.). It has an area of about 500,000 sq. miles and a population estimated at 4,600,000; the population of the five districts, Loanda, Benguella, Congo, Lunda and Mossamedes, was, in 1900, 789,946 (10,757 whites). It is divided, for the purposes of government, into six districts: Loanda, Benguella, Lunda, Hulla, Mossamedes and Congo; the last-named being the part of Angola within the conventional basin of the Congo, and of which the chief town is Cabinda, situated in a patch of Portuguese territory a little to the north of the great river.

PORTS.—Taken in order from this extremity of the province, the ports of Angola are Landana, Cabinda, St. Antonio do Zaire (St. Antonio on the Congo), Quinzao, Mucula, Ambrizette, Mussera, Kinsembo, Ambriz, Loanda (the capital), Novo Redondo, Benguella, Mossamedes and Porto Alexandre.

ROUTE.—Calling at Loanda there are now three steamers a month from Lisbon, leaving on the 1st, 7th and 22nd respectively. There are also steamers from Liverpool every four weeks (Elder, Dempster & Co.), also from Hamburg every four weeks (Woermann Linie).

COMMERCE.—The exports consist of coffee, india-rubber, wax, palm kernels, palm oil, dried fish, ivory, cattle, hides, orchella sugar, gum copal, fibre and tobacco &c.

The greater part of this produce goes to Portugal and Portuguese possessions, and the remainder to England, Holland and Germany. The coffee is of two kinds, one a large bean, known as Encoje, which comes from the Hinterland of Ambriz and Ambrizette, and the other a small one, grown in Cazengo and Golungo Alto, sub-districts of Loanda, which lie about 200 miles from the coast. Both kinds are the produce of indigenous plants and of low quality.

The principal imports are as follow:—Cotton, linen and woollen goods, earthenware, hardware and cutlery, machinery, powder, guns, coal, wines, oil, flour, canned fruits and vegetables, salt, soap, spirits, beer, timber, petroleum, cement, tobacco &c.

MANUFACTURES.—Tobacco and a few cotton and woollen articles for native wear, woven from imported yarns.

AMBRIZ, a port of Angola, situated about 70 miles north of Loanda, near the river Loje, which is the southern boundary of the conventional basin of the Congo. Duties lower than those of Loanda, Benguella and Mossamedes, but higher than those levied in Congo district, which were fixed by international agreement. Telegraphic communication with Europe by land line to Loanda, thence by submarine cable. Portuguese authority does not extend beyond the town and its immediate vicinity. Trade with natives from coffee country in interior constantly hampered by those inhabiting the coast region who tax it heavily in both directions. A breakwater is in course of construction. Population 3,000.

PORTUGUESE NORTH-WEST AFRICA

GUINEA

PORTUGUESE GUINEA comprises the possessions of Portugal in Senegambia. Its area is about 13,000 square miles and the population a little over 820,000 inhabitants. The principal ports are Bulama, Bissao and Cacheu. The principal produce is rice. Its imports are wine and spirits, alcohol, cotton yarn, tobacco, gunpowder, iron and fire-arms and swords, dry goods of all kinds, and rice; its exports are kernels, rubber, hides and skins, palm oil and palm nuts, caoutchouc, gum copal, leather, beeswax and ground nuts, ivory and aigrettes. The country produces a large quantity of rice, which is consumed locally, and the calebasses are sent up the rivers Pongo and Nunez. At Preço-bre there is a large sugar plantation and at Bambaio a coffee estate. The trade of the colony is exclusively done with England and Germany, France and Portugal.

SAN THOMÉ AND PRINCIPE

THE Portuguese ultramarine province of SAN THOMÉ AND PRINCIPE consists of two fertile islands near the coast of Guinea. The area is about 770 square miles and the population is estimated to be 45,000. These islands produce coffee, cacao and quina (which are the chief articles of export), palm kernels, copra and chinchona. S. Thomé is the capital of these islands.

SAN THOMÉ has a population of 30,000, including about 5,000 Europeans. The Empreza Nacional runs steamers from Lisbon on the 1st, 7th, 20th and 22nd of every month. Messrs. Elder, Dempster & Co.'s and Messrs. Woermann & Co.'s steamers call monthly.

CAPE VERDE ISLANDS

CAPE VERDE ISLANDS, on the West Coast of Africa, had a population of 142,552 inhabitants in 1910; it is an archipelago fourteen in number, which are divided in two groups: that of Barlavento comprising the islands of S. Antão, St. Vincent, Santa Luzia, St. Nicolas, Boa Vista and Sal; and that of Sotavento comprising St. Thiago, Fogo, Brava and Maio. The area of the whole is about 1,480 square miles. The most important and productive islands are those of St. Thiago, S. Antão, Fogo, Brava and St. Nicolas. Coral fishery is carried on. The exports consist of coffee and the Purgueira nut, from which latter is obtained an oil greatly in demand in Portugal for the manufacture of soap. In the island of St. Vincent are large coal depôts for steamers which call there. St. Thiago has only a small depôt, and the port is so small that very few steamers touch there. From Sal and Maio salt is exported. The imports consist of cotton woollen and linen goods, crockery ware, Birmingham goods, coals &c.

Lloyd's Agents, Millers & Corys Limited, St. Vincent.

ROUTE.—By Royal Mail Steam Packet Co.'s steamers from Southampton every month; and by Empreza Naciona steamers from Lisbon every fortnight; also by Pacific Steam Navigation Co.'s steamers from Liverpool every fortnight.

PORTUGUESE EAST AFRICA

PORTUGUESE EAST AFRICA consists of territories administered by the State, five in number, Lourenço Marques, Tete, Mozambique, Inhambane and Quilimane, and also territories administered by the Nyasa and Mozambique Companies under royal charters. Lourenço Marques is the capital of the province. The chief products are rubber, sugar, coconuts and bees wax. Gold has also been discovered and there are coal deposits in the Tete district. The Delagoa Bay railway connects the port of Lourenço Marques with Pretoria in the Transvaal, and has a length of about 350 miles. Beira is also connected by railway with Buluwayo in Rhodesia.

BEIRA. Natural port for Rhodesia. Population, 1913, 8,000, of whom 1,050 are Europeans. It is an excellent harbour and affords safe anchorage for numbers of vessels of large tonnage. Has direct railway communication with Rhodesia and also with Katanga in the Belgian Congo. A railway is in course of construction from the northern bank of Zambezi to Port Herald, Nyasaland. Here is a Chamber of Commerce.

SHIPPING AND NAVIGATION.—German East African Line, twice every 20 days, one steamer going north through the Suez Canal and one going south round the Cape of Good Hope; Rennie Line; Hall Line; Bombay & Persian, twice a month; Union-Castle, twice a month; Ellerman-Harrison Line, Clan Line, Bullard, King & Co.; Empresa Nacional de Navegação, once a month to and from Portugal via Portuguese West Africa.

Lloyd's Agent, The Manica Trading Co. Limited.

LOURENÇO MARQUES. Chief town of the Portuguese possessions in Eastern Africa, situated on Delagoa Bay at the mouth of the Tembe and Umbeluzi rivers. It is 293 miles from Durban and 396 miles from Johannesburg, with which town it has direct railway communication. The population in Dec. 1912, was 5,324 whites and 8,029 coloured.

The bay of Delagoa is well sheltered and affords a safe anchorage for shipping. The minimum depth of water on the bar at low spring tides is 18 feet. This depth is being increased by dredging and vessels drawing up to 22 feet can make fast and discharge alongside the wharves. The bar is some 8 miles from the town and wharves. The wharves, measuring some 1,000 yards, can accommodate 8 large steamers. They are fitted with Temperley transporters and electric cranes. Shed and storage accommodation is also ample. There is also an extensive lighterage plant for dealing with ships anchored in the stream.

The following are the shipping lines whose steamers regularly frequent the port:—British India Steam Navigation Co.; Aberdeen Line; Union-Castle Line; Rennie Line; Bullard, King & Co.; Bucknall S.S. Line; Clan Line; Houston Line; Ellerman-Harrison Line; Deutsche Ost-Afrika Line; Empreza Nacional de Navegação de Lisboa; Prince Line; Currie & Co.; Crosby & Co.; Hansa Line; Indian-African Line; Howard, Smith & Co.; Swedish S. African Line; Scandinavian S. Africa Line.

The total number of vessels entered and cleared during 1912 was 675, of 2,147,095 tons.

MOZAMBIQUE. The exports from Mozambique generally go to Marseilles, Hamburg, Rotterdam or Lisbon. The principal articles of export are oil seeds and rubber. A small export trade is also done in beeswax, hides and ivory to India.

The principal imports are cotton goods from Bombay, as also woolens, flannels and other textiles. Boots and shoes, hats, and other articles of wearing apparel, soaps, toilet articles and many sundries are also imported from Bombay by the Indian traders. Tinned fruits and meat are imported from England or Portugal; wines from Portugal and France—the latter country also supplies vermouth, cognac and absinthe, while whisky comes from England. Cutlery and tools are of English or German make.

The regular steamship lines to Mozambique are: (1) The British India Steam Navigation Co. Ltd., twice monthly, viâ Suez Canal; (2) The Deutsche Ost Afrika Linie, which calls from the north and south twice a month according to time table and also coasting steamers to and from Bombay belonging to the same company; (3) The Empreza Nacional de Navigação, calling fortnightly, and one big steamer every month. Union-Castle S. S. Co. viâ Suez Canal once a month.

PORTUGUESE POSSESSIONS IN ASIA AND OCEANIA

INDIA

PORTUGUESE INDIA has an area of 3,502 square kilomètres and a population of 475,513(1900) inhabitants. It comprises five important islands: Goa, Chorão, Divar or Piedade, Combarjua or S. Braz and Ina or S. Estevão. The most important centres are Goa and Mormugão. The chief imports consist of cotton goods, grain, sugar, wines and spirits and metals. The chief exports consist of cocoanuts and other fruits, manganese ore, salt and betel nuts. There is communication with both the ports by steamers, the former port only being visited during the period from about the middle of September to the end of the following May, and the latter port all the year round. The port of Mormugão, which has accommodation for ocean-going steamers alongside the wharves, is connected with the British India Railway system. Import cargoes are landed at the port of Mormugão for transit by rail to the inland British Indian districts.

The Export and Import trade of Portuguese India during 1911 amounted to Rupees 98.60.744.

MACAO AND TIMOR

MACAO.—Macao is a part of the island of Hsiang Shan in China, at the mouth of the Canton river; its area is 45 square kilomètres. Population (1900), 63,991.

The trade of Macao is not very considerable, and is, as far as the imports are concerned, mostly in the hands of the Chinese and Indians; the Portuguese do very little business themselves. The export of tea is in the hands of British firms.

The exports from this island are tea, wax, animals, silk, rice, tobacco, indigo, cassia oil, aniseed oil &c. Opium is exported in not inconsiderable quantities.

Lloyd's Agents, Gilman & Co. Hong Kong.

MACAO is the capital of the island and has a port principally adapted for Chinese junks and steamers of light draught. The imports consist of opium, salt, woollen and cotton goods, stores, wines &c. The greater part of the population are Chinese.

The Portuguese possession of TIMOR comprises the eastern portion of the island of the same name in the Malay Peninsula, the remainder being under Dutch rule, together with the territory of Ambeno and the island of Pulo Cambing. The government of Timor is now separated from that of Macao. Its area is 17,001 square kilomètres, and its population about 300,000. The capital is Dili. The exports are principally potatoes and coffee, and the imports rice and cotton goods.

Timor is of no commercial importance. A few mines are now being worked in the island, which may encourage trade.

ROUMANIA

THE kingdom of Roumania has an area of about 131,353 square kilomètres and an estimated population, in December, 1912, of 7.248,061.

Roumania previous to 1878 was tributary to the suzerainty of Turkey. In May, 1877, she declared her independence and formed herself into an independent principality, as a constitutional monarchy governed by a prince, an upper house or Senate, and a lower house or House of Representatives; the treaty of Berlin, in July, 1878, confirmed her independence. In May, 1881, she declared herself a kingdom.

The soil of the country is remarkably rich, and minerals and precious metals are said to be abundant, but are not worked. Petroleum and coal are raised to an increasing extent, The industry of Roumania being chiefly agricultural, the exports are principally wheat, rye, barley, oats, maize, bran, alcohol, timber and petroleum &c. while the imports consist chiefly of Southern fruits and colonial produce; chemicals and chemical products; leather, furs and manufactures thereof; textiles &c.; machinery, sheet iron &c.

The principal ports are Braila, Galatz, Sulina, Tulcea and Constantza (or Kustendjie), the only seaport on the Black Sea.

The secondary ports of the Danube in Roumania are Turno-Severin, Gruia, Calafat, Bechet, Turno-Magurele. Zimnicea, Oltenitza, Calarasi, Cernavoda, Giurgiu and Corabia.

FINANCES.—For a considerable period the finances of the kingdom could hardly be said to be in a satisfactory condition, inasmuch as the yearly budget continually showed a deficit; but the year 1902 saw an improvement in the finances, the expenditure being covered by the receipts, and since that date the receipts have always shown a surplus over the expenditure.

The following shows the ordinary revenue and expenditure for the years—

	Receipts. Leï.	Expenditure. Leï.
1900-1901	210,042,758	237,286,775
1901-1902	239,313,400	218,286,211
1904-1905	258,571,245	252,095,519
1907-1908	307,846,780	252,475,457
1910-1911	461,079,942	454,194,583
1911-1912	575,056,518	464,664,852

	Leï.
1887	778,802,371
1898	1,222,123,525
1910	1,598,916,306

COMMERCE.—Roumania is to a large extent an agricultural country. The principal trade is in cereals, wheat, rye, barley, maize and oats, of which there is produced an average total of about 4,400,000 tons. Wood and petroleum also are a considerable source of wealth.

The exports consist principally of grain, wood and petroleum, cereals alone amount to about 85%, wood 4·6% and petroleum 4·5% of the total exports.

PETROLEUM.—The production of crude oil in 1911 was 1,625,119 tons, valued at Leï 49,296,000, and the export of petroleum products was 677,982 tons, valued at Leï 39,627,000.

The imports, principally from Germany, Austria, Hungary and England, consist chiefly of textile fabrics, metals, coal, iron and machinery, colonial goods, furniture &c.

The exports are distributed to Belgium, Holland, England, Italy, Germany &c.

The Roumanian Minister in London is Mons. Nicolas Misu, 4 Cromwell place S W.

The British Minister at Bucharest is Sir G. H. Barclay, K.C.S.I., K.C.M.G., C.V.O.

The Consul General in London is Lt.-Col. Sir Albert Kaye Rollit, LL.D. 3 Mincing lane E C; Vice-Consul, G. N. Gologan, 87A & 88A Leadenhall street E C; Consul in Manchester, Richard Goldschmidt.

The Export and Import trade of Roumania during 1910 amounted to Leï 1,026,218,500.

BRAILA, 103 miles from Sulina and 11 from Galatz, with a population of about 69,000 (March, 1913), is the great outlet for the Roumanian trade. It is the chief export port of Roumania for grain, both by craft and rail, and for imports into the interior.

There is a regular service of vessels of the Johnston line, from Liverpool and Antwerp; Westcott and Laurance line, from London and Antwerp; Austrian Lloyd's, the Navigazione Generale Italiana (Florio & Rubattino), French Fraissinet, Pantaleon P. & Co. Archipelago-American S.S. Co., Société Mahsoussé (Constantinople-Braila), the Russian line to Odessa between this port and the Danubian ports and Constantinople, the Deutsche Levante Linie (Hamburg) and the Service Maritime Roumain (Rotterdam). There is also a river service, Austrian Lloyd's (D.D.S.G.), in connection with the services running on the Upper Danube, viz.: Donau Dampfschiffahrts-Ges., Hungarian Steamship Co., Regia Monop. Statului.

CONSTANTZA (OR KUSTENDJIE) is a port likely to rise into importance, being the only Roumanian Black Sea harbour. In the inner or old harbour the depth alongside the quays is 25 feet; in the outer or new harbour it is 30 feet, and its length is 1,090 feet. The breakwaters enclose a large area and afford good shelter. There are 24 landing stages, three of which are for coal import and wood export. For spirits and petroleum there is a special basin, where four steamers can lie. For the grain export there are four elevators. It is the only outlet for the produce of the Dobrudja. There are no manufactures of any sort for export, the industry of the district being purely agricultural. Population, 20,000.
The articles imported consist chiefly of coal, cotton and woollen goods from England and Germany, agricultural implements from America, England and Russia, and silks from France.
Exports: Cereals, flour, cheese, wood, salt, sugar, skins, hides, spirits, petroleum (Roumanian), wool, cattle and sheep. Excluding cereals and wool, the exports generally go to Turkey and the Levant.

SULINA is a small town, situated at the mouth of the branch of the river Danube which is called the Sulina branch. Population (1909), 7,103. It is the only port on the Danube that is free, and is the port of transhipment of goods coming down the Danube to seagoing vessels.

The following are the different kinds of cereals which are exported from this port: Wheat, rye, maize, barley, oats, beans, millet seed, rape seed and hemp seed. These exports are not, however, the produce of Sulina, but are almost entirely brought down in lighters from up-river ports.

RUSSIA

THE total area of the Russian Empire is 8,647,657 square miles, and the population of Russia including Finland in 1910 was estimated to be 163,778,000.

COMMERCE:—The industry of Russia is chiefly agricultural, and upon the success or failure of the crops the prosperity or otherwise of the country mainly depends.

Various parts of the Empire are, however, rich in mineral wealth, such as Siberia, the Ural mountains, the Caucasus &c. But although the precious metals, as well as iron, copper, lead and zinc and coal, exist in considerable quantities, the mining industry is very slow of development, in spite of the very heavy import duties upon all descriptions of material imported. Iron and coal are found in the south-east, towards the Sea of Azoff, and in Poland, both in sufficient quantities and in sufficiently accessible localities to promise a steady industrial development. In the Ural mountains iron of excellent quality and various other minerals are found, but the desirable corresponding supply of coal in the neighbourhood is wanting, whilst the forests are very much exhausted, and the Urals are too far from the consuming markets of the world to permit the expectation of a rapid development of mineral industry in that region. Gold is found exclusively in the Urals and Siberia, and petroleum practically exclusively in the Caucasus.

Oil Industry.—Particulars of this will be found under Baku and Batoum.

Wine Industry.—Russia has started wine making, the vineyards of the Caucasus are very fertile, and in the province of Erivan and Turkestan it has become an important industry capable of supplying the whole of Russia. In the Crimea the vines receive most careful attention, and undergo a rational system of cultivation, the result being white and red table wines of an excellent quality, and very satisfactory substitutes for Burgundy, Sauterne and Médoc.

Tobacco and cotton are also grown in Southern Russia.

ALEXANDROWSK, Population, 50,000. A town of European Russia, 48 miles from Ekaterinoslav, the capital of a district of the same name on the left bank of the Dnieper, at the mouth of the Moscowka river. The district is for the greater part given to agricultural pursuits; but in the town and surrounding districts there are large engineering establishments, manufacturing agricultural implements such as reapers, ploughs, winnowing and horse thrashing machines. It is the last town on the Dnieper, between Odessa and Ekaterinoslav, at which the river is navigable, and is the chief shipping port for grain shipments to Odessa; chief shipping centre for the coal going to the south of Russia and Black Sea from the wealthy mineral district of Backmut. Distance from St. Petersburg 1,648, and from Moscow 1,038, versts.

ARCHANGEL, population 35,000, on the Dwina, 42 versts from the White Sea, is a place of considerable trade. The town is now connected with the State railway system via Vologda. Its navigation is generally open from the latter part of May to the middle of October. The exports consist of grain, linseed, tar, skins, oilcakes, turpentine, train oil, tongues, pitch, deals, flax and mats, but the principal industry of the district is the hewing and collection of timber, of which over two million trunks are annually floated to the saw mills of Archangel. The imports consist of tea, salt, coals, cement, wines and machinery, mostly from the United Kingdom, but also from Belgium, France, Germany, [illegible]

Annual fair, from 1st of September to 1st of October.

BATOUM (BATUM) (TRANSCAUCASIA), on the Black Sea, provincial town and port, in the Province of Batoum, with a population of 34,117, chiefly composed of Turks, Armenians, Georgians and Mingrelians; but most of the trade is in the hands of Armenians and foreigners. Distance from St. Petersburg 3,804, from Moscow 3,204, from Tiflis (the capital of the Caucasus) 325, and from Baku 839 versts. Postal, telegraph, railway and steamship station. It is the principal port for the export of petroleum and other naphtha products from Baku. The commercial and industrial activity of the town, and indeed almost the entire industry, is dependent on the Baku petroleum industry. An enormous amount of capital is invested in the trade. Here are factories, pipe line, and 165 iron reservoirs of a capacity of 460,000 tons. The pipe line between Baku and Batoum runs a distance of 839 versts. The quantity of petroleum (kerosene) which it is stated the pipe line is capable of conveying to Batoum is 5,500,000 poods, or 88,710 tons, per month.

At Elizavetpol there is a factory for the production of liquorice and another at Oudjari, both carried on by The Caucasian Licorice Co. Ltd. and another liquorice root factory belonging to Messrs. Ghizi Brothers, situated at Ljaki, in the Government of Elizavetpol. Nearly the whole of this product is exported to the U. S. of America.

Only maize, manganese and walnut wood are now exported through Poti, all the export trade of Transcaucasia passing through Batoum.

The following is a return of the principal articles of export from Batoum during 1912:—

Articles.	Quantity. Tons.
Petroleum products	545,725
Wool	4,264
Liquorice root	15,647

BERDIANSK, with a population of 40,000, is situated on the north shore of the Sea of Azoff, at the extremity of a bay; this is the best and most convenient port in the Azoff. Distant from St. Petersburg 1,799, from Moscow 1,195 werst.

The railway is now open, connecting some very prolific parts of this district with the port, and this must of necessity increase the amount of grain brought in, and Berdiansk will take a much more important position amongst the exporting ports of the Azoff.

The new port is also finished, and provides ample accommodation to the loading craft, thus placing merchants in a far more satisfactory position with regard to the time required for loading operations, the old pier for many years having been inadequate. The depth of water being about 18 feet, the new port will only permit craft drawing that to enter.

The vine is cultivated to some extent in the neighbourhood, and wine of fair quality is produced.

The exports consist exclusively of grain and seed and rape-seed and oilcake (161,673 tons in 1912, chiefly wheat and barley).
